

Share Report Abuse Next Blog»

ART AND ENTERTAIN ME

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 2011

Dramatic Idomeneo Opens 28th Season at Opera San Jose

By Emma Krasov

Mozart's Idomeneo: re di Creta (libretto by Giambattista Varesco) is not only a musical genius's masterpiece, but also a drama-filled episode of that endless soap opera of antiquity known as Greek mythology. Personal heartbreaks, confused relations, and split loyalties abound within the dysfunctional families of ancient kings, gods and titans.

The mythical king of Crete, Idomeneo, faces some tough choices at the end of Trojan War. He might lose his life, his son, or his crown (what would you do?)

Other characters struggle with their own demons – love for the enemy combatant and betrayal of the fallen (Iliia, the daughter of Priam, the king of Troy); love for the POW and betrayal of his allies (Idamante, the son of Idomeneo who ruled Crete while his father was fighting on the side of Greece against the Trojans); and jealousy (Electra – a refugee from Argos with a family history of matricide and other “cides” to run from). There is also a sea monster devouring thousands of innocent Cretans in lieu of Idomeneo sacrificing his son to Neptune, which he promised in order to spare his own life...

If the story is notoriously complex and multi-layered as is always the case with Greek myths, the music is soothingly harmonious and

TOTAL PAGEVIEWS

48,174

BEST INDEPENDENT BLOG NATJA
BRONZE AWARD 2010 TRAVEL BLOG
NATJA AWARD OF MERIT 2009.

Emma Krasov, Travel and Lifestyle
Writer & Yuri Krasov, Photographer

CATEGORIES

Travel (108)
Restaurant (104)
Food (60)
Relationship advice (60)
Art museum exhibit (56)
Show (54)
Theatre (46)
Wine (35)
Art gallery (22)
Film (18)
Opera (14)
Cal Performances (13)
Locally exotic (11)
Ballet (10)
Cocktails (9)
Music (9)
Photography (9)

ABOUT ME

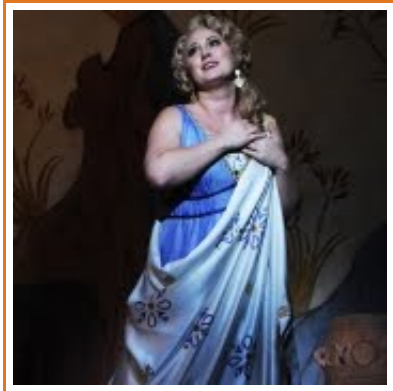

EMMA KRASOV

overpowering in a gentle and subtle way, as is always the case with Mozart.

Conducted by George Cleve, and stage-directed by Brad Dalton, Idomeneo: King of Crete at Opera San Jose features some resident company artists and some former members and guests.

On the night I saw the performance, Christopher Bengochea was very impressive in the title role, flanked by two OSJ stars, Rebecca Davis as Ilia, and Christina Major as Electra.

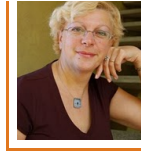

Aaron Blake performed Idamante. Dennis Nahat, Artistic Director of Ballet San Jose choreographed beautiful dance numbers with his company members. Set designer Steven C. Kemp magically transformed the stage into red-clayed Crete with its palaces and its raging waters. Costume designer Johann Stegmeir, wig and makeup designer Jeanna Parham, and lighting designer Christopher Ostrom brought to life the faces and myths of 1200 BC in a harmonious and concerted effort with the well-attuned cast.

Idomeneo runs through September 25 at the California Theatre, 345 South First St., San Jose. Call for tickets 408-437-4450, or visit www.operasf.org.

Images: courtesy Opera San Jose.

POSTED BY EMMA KRASOV AT 1:51 PM

LABELS: OPERA

SAN FRANCISCO BAY AREA, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES

Emma Krasov (Эмма Красов)

holds a position of Arts and Entertainment Editor, Food and Travel Writer with a Russian-American weekly newspaper published in San Francisco, and contributes to other print and online publications nationwide. Emma Krasov is the sole copyright holder of all articles published on this blog (unless otherwise posted) and all photographs produced by Emma Krasov or by Yuri Krasov and published on this blog. Emma Krasov's written consent is required for any reproduction of her original texts or her or Yuri Krasov's original photographs. Copyright 2007-2011 Emma Krasov. All Rights Reserved.

VIEW MY COMPLETE PROFILE

BLOG ARCHIVE

Blog Archive 